

your contributions: kudos

Castle Pines Village receives top award from 'Golfweek'

Submitted by Courtney Lis

YourHub.com user

Colorado's most celebrated golf community, Castle Pines Village, was named Courtney Lis handles public relations for Castle Pines Village.

2009's No. 2 best residential golf course in the U.S. by Golfweek magazine.

For more than 20 years, Castle Pines Village has been the pinnacle of luxurious living along the Front Range of Colorado and this honor comes in the face of a great deal of new competition coming on the market.

"In the 20 years since Castle Pines Village was founded, no other community in the area has successfully rivaled the splendor of this project," said Jack Vickers, the original developer of Castle Pines Village who still oversees the development today. "Nature is your backyard and the city is at your feet."

At the center of the community are two nationally celebrated Jack Nicklaus Signature Courses, which have been delicately carved out among towering rock bluffs and stands of grand ponderosa pinus and gambel oak and continue to allure even the most seasoned golfers.

Although different in design and character, both have received numerous awards and accolades over the years and remain the crown jewels of Castle Pines Village. Jack Nicklaus personally designed both of these magnificent courses to embrace the rolling landscape and outstanding views of this special property, while providing a strategic challenge for golfers of every ability.

"Rarely will one encounter a golf course as magnificent as those at Castles Pines," said Nicklaus. "I took great pride in developing two very different golf courses for both professional and amateur golfers alike."

The Country Club at Castle Pines is the foremost residential golf course in Colorado. Designed by Nicklaus, The Country Club at Castle Pines is an 18-hole, 7,231-yard, par 72, private championship course.

With no two holes that run parallel to each other, golfers enjoy not only a challenging game, but spectacular views of the rolling terrain, where ancient pines sweep the deep blue bowl of the sky.